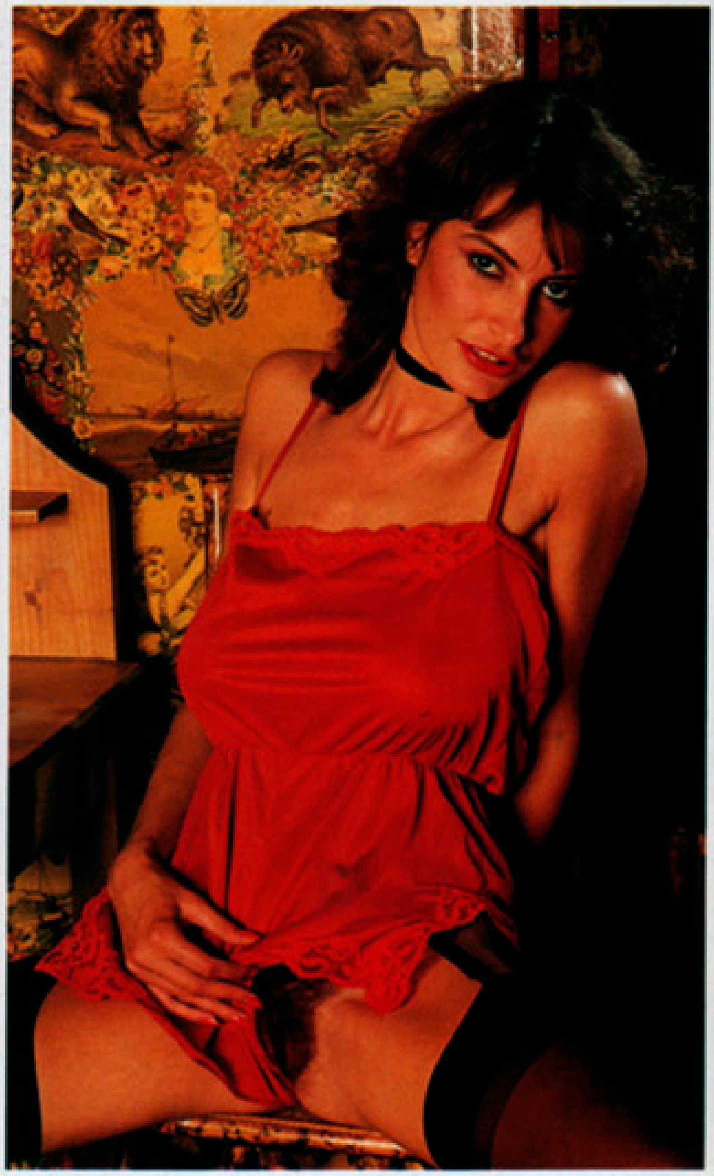
Jane

PHOTOGRAPHED BY DONALD MILNE

Ex-student teacher Jane was awarded top marks by readers when she appeared in Vol 17 No 3.



It is fortunate for us that sexy 20-year-old Jane Hamilton quit college after a year, for if she had carried on with her studies she would have become a teacher and we'd never have got the chance of seeing her superb 34C-24-34 figure.

'I decided I couldn't take being a teacher seriously when I was on teaching practice and a little boy pinched my bottom. He was only 12-years-old and I had to laugh. I told him I go for younger men.'

Jane lives in Brentwood and went to Shenfield Comprehensive school there. Then she went to Homerton teacher-training college at Cambridge. At school and college, Jane loved acting and she appeared in several productions including one comedy review called Straight Up where she had to strip off most of her clothes. 'I enjoyed it, but I tried not to think of all those eyes on me.' Before the curtain rose Jane was in a bed onstage with a male actor. 'I started tickling him and he told me not to because he was only wearing pants and had to get out of bed.'

Jane's favourite hobbies are painting and writing. She doesn't like love stories, but goes in for the more macabre with a twist at the end. But in her art she is more romantic. 'Womens' bodies are lovely to draw and I do fantasy pictures, slightly erotic.' We asked Jane how she keeps her figure in trim, but she laughed and said, 'That would be telling.'

Bernice

PHOTOGRAPHED BY JOHN ALLUM

Modest though she is, blonde Bernice Winters has to admit that her life so far has been something of a success story. Leaving secretarial college at 18, now just two years later she has landed herself the top job of personal assistant to a director of an international computer giant. A lot of responsibility for the 36-24-35 Londoner, who regularly organises meetings and conferences. So why did she decide to try her hand at modelling?

This is what we took down from Bernice in Vol 17 No 6.

'My boss always reads Mayfair and on a couple of occasions he has suggested that I model for you. When he sees me on the centre pages, he'll be really pleased. I may even get a rise!' Bernice laughed. 'He's a great man to work for, we go out together quite often.'

Fortunately for other men though, Bernice occasionally tears herself away from work to meet up with friends. 'One of my favourite haunts is John G's wine bar in the West End. It's small and very friendly. I meet lots of men there. They even serve breakfast. That can be very handy,' she smiled.

SARAH

PHOTOGRAPHED BY
ROY BREWINGTON

There's no denying that Sarah Green's 37-23-37 body is statuesque. In fact there are so many statues in honour of her body that Sarah has simply lost count. While most of us dress for work, Sarah strips off to her bare essentials. Then she poses while would-be photographers, sculptors and artists try to capture the perfection of her figure.

'I've been a freelance model for about two years,' said 21-year-old Sarah. 'Often sculptors book me – I think they like my curvy outline. I also pose for photographic clubs and artists. The work's quite enjoyable, though the really long sittings get a bit tedious. It's interesting to see the finished results, although it's not always very flattering. Sometimes I get a sculptor who uses me for inspiration, or I sit for an artist and the end result doesn't even look remotely human, let alone like me.'

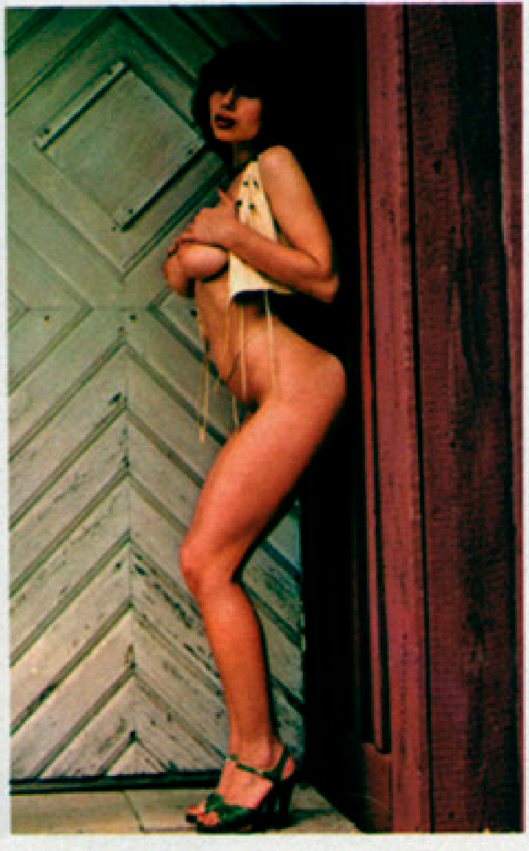
Sarah lives in Enfield, Middlesex, and we are indebted to a budding sculptor in that neck of the woods who said to Sarah one day: 'With a figure like yours you should be in the magazines.' Sarah took this fine gentleman's excellent advice and decided that Mayfair should carry her magazine debut. 'I like modelling in front of a camera,' said Sarah. 'If anything it's a bit better because I can move around a lot more. 'People ask me if I ever get turned on sitting naked in front of the opposite sex, and I have to be honest and admit that I do if I fancy them at all. I put on a bit more of an on-turning pose, you know. But you get very blasé about posing nude – in fact, I once forgot I was nude. During a rest break at an art evening class I walked out of the studio to go to the loo without a stitch on. It gave the Spanish class a real shock.'

AVA

PHOTOGRAPHED BY PETER FLODQVIST

Making a welcome return visit to our pages is Ava Cadell who wowed you all some three years back. Ava, who's now reached the ripe old age of 23, has spent a majority of the interim period modelling abroad, ensuring that her 5 feet 5 inch, 34C-21-33 is now just as familiar a sight on the continent as it is over here. She's also been adding to her list of television credits which now boasts appearances in such prestige shows as The Two Ronnies as well as earlier spots in the late lamented Steptoe and Son, (the part, by the way, that brought her to the notice of Mayfair readers), and the first of the great science-fiction blockbusters 2001. Ava still shares her bedroom with Monty, Nancy, and Cedric – cuddly toys of course – and Popeye the vulgar parrot too. Plus, as they say, ca change.

TV actress Ava scored a big hit when we featured her in Vol 13 No 8.



Say it again, Sam!

Lizzie

PHOTOGRAPHED BY DONALD MILNE

If you have a feeling that you've seen Lizzie Williams somewhere before, you're probably right. For this sexy 21-year-old has appeared on the packs and helped advertise many leading products from jewellery to glue. She even appeared on the Bournvita tin. But her superb 34-23-33 figure was not shown to such good advantage as it is in Mayfair.

Lizzie, who lives in a small village in Worcestershire, started a course studying theatre at Manchester University, but left after a year and a half because she decided it was not for her. Before taking up a professional modelling career she tried various jobs ranging from picking strawberries to go-go dancing and working for Birmingham City Council.

When it comes to relaxing, Lizzie loves music, from rock to classical. 'Genesis are my favourite band, I once queued for two days to see them in Birmingham and had to be rescued by a policeman when I was crushed by the crowd. I was taken to hospital with exposure – but I got the tickets and it was worth it.' Lizzie also enjoys cooking, specially paella.

MEL APPLEBY

Strips

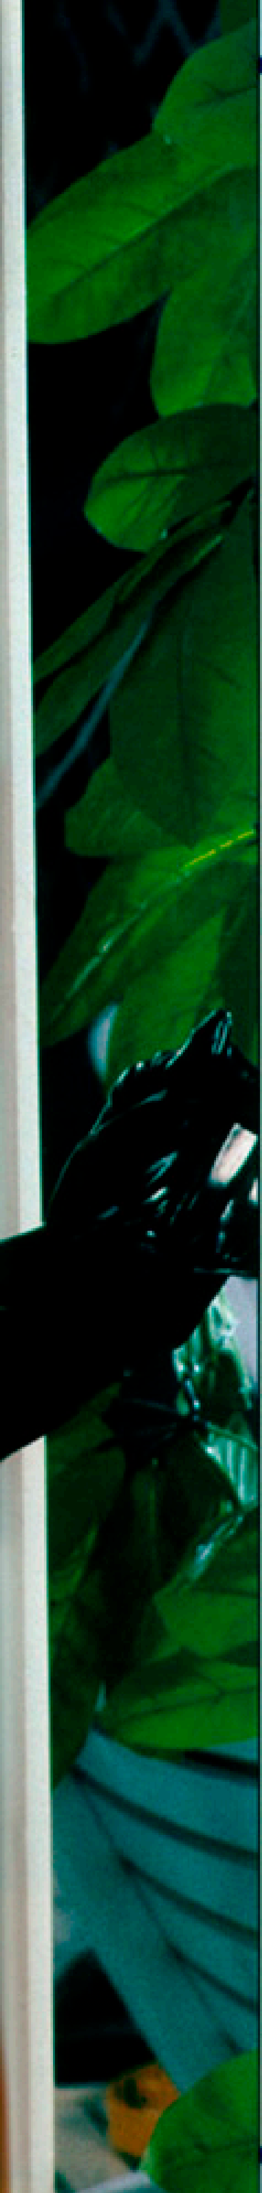
'The music scene is more fun than modelling'

As half of pop duo Mel and Kim, sexy Mel Appleby stormed up the charts with the smash hit Showing Out which went silver in the UK before taking off all over Europe. But before shooting to success as a pop star, Mel, 21, made her mark in the modelling world as a Starbird and Page Three girl. Now she has turned her back on modelling to concentrate on a singing career, but we have tracked down these pictures which reveal her curvy 36-24-35 figure in what we believe are the sexiest poses available of magnificent Mel. But make the most of them because it's unlikely we'll see Mel modelling again. She told The Star, 'I'm not ashamed of what I did. In fact I quite enjoyed it. But being involved in the music scene is much more fun. It's like a dream come true for me.'

Mel and her older sister Kim, 24,grew up on an estate in Hackney in the East End of London. Her mother launched Mel on her modelling career by sending photos to an agency. But Mel says her ambitions did not lie in that direction. 'I wanted to branch out into other things. It wasn't my career. I just saw it as a way of making money.'

'I always wanted to branch into other things'

'She was a lovely girl, never short of boyfriends'



The girls have followed up their success with Showing Out with two more smash hits, Respectable, which gave them their first number one, and FLM, (Fun, Love and Money), which at the time of writing is number seven and rising. A highly successful world tour brought the duo new fame in North America and acclaim at the Montreux Pop Festival. Despite a recent back injury, which has put Mel temporarily out of commisssion, the sisters look set to stay in the big time. Talking of Mel, Kim said, 'Her best quality is her bubbly personality. People take to Mel far easier than they do me. And she was always the better looking one. She was a lovely girl, and never short of boyfriends.'

Marion

PHOTOGRAPHED BY JOHN ALLUM

If you ask Marion Paul about her favourite hobby, she'll probably just smile and tell you, 'It don't mean a thing if it ain't got that swing.' But don't get the wrong impression – she's not talking about her delightful 34-25-36 figure, just quoting Duke Ellington. Marion is, you see, a jazz buff and along with Louis Armstrong the Duke is one of her heroes. 'I know they were old men before I was born, but the music still seems just as relevant today as it was fifty years ago. Other people my age seem to go in for either punk or disco music, but I prefer my music sweet and hot, like my men,' she giggled. Marion is lucky because she lives in Kingston, not far from the Grey Horse which has jazz bands playing regularly. 'You will find me there at least once a week, up near the stage and shaking around to the music. I love the feel of jazz – it's goodtime music.'

Marion, 21, who earns her living as an audio-typist, goes to see jazz bands whenever she gets the chance. 'I like talking to other fans, but I am now much more careful about what I say after an incident which really embarrassed me. It happened a couple of years ago when a friend and I went to a jazz festival. A good-looking chap came up to us in the bar and started chatting me up. I was telling him about my favourite bands and said I couldn't stand all that modern jazz because it hasn't got the same swing to it. I was quite strong in my opinions and couldn't understand why my friend kept kicking me under the table. When the chap left, she told me that he was in a contemporary band which had made several records.'

Marion is saving hard to raise the cash for a trip to America in the autumn. 'I want to visit New Orleans which is really the home of jazz. I have heard that many of the bars still have jazz bands playing and I can just see myself sitting in one sipping a mint julep. I'd also like to take a trip on a paddle steamer, along the banks of the Mississippi river.'

Helena

PHOTOGRAPHED BY ED ALEXANDER

Elegance personified, that's cool 20-year-old blonde Helena Fairchild, a lissome beauty from the small Somerset town of Street. Her statuesque 34-23-34 figure has many admirers in the town's Red Lion Hotel where she often goes for a drink. 'Oh yes, I have to stop off there for a gin and tonic or else I'd die! It's the only thing that stops me going mad, especially after a hard day in the office.' But surely this exquisite lady isn't trapped behind a desk all day? 'Oh no, I work for a firm of auctioneers and some days I have to sit and type out the catalogues, but often I'm out visiting.'

'We auction all kinds of things from china to a whole estate. So I'm usually off looking at some antique knick-knack or other. And you do meet some really unusual people. I remember one man who wanted us to sell his Victorian commode or 'night stool' as he called it. He wasn't happy until I'd sat on it to feel how comfortable it was. For a nasty moment

I thought he was going to ask me to use it! Then you get the ones who are keen on showing you a lot more than their antiques. I always wear skirts to work and out on a few visits I've felt a stray hand moving up my thigh. Mind you if it belongs to a handsome wealthy young man, who's going to complain?' smiled delightful Helena.

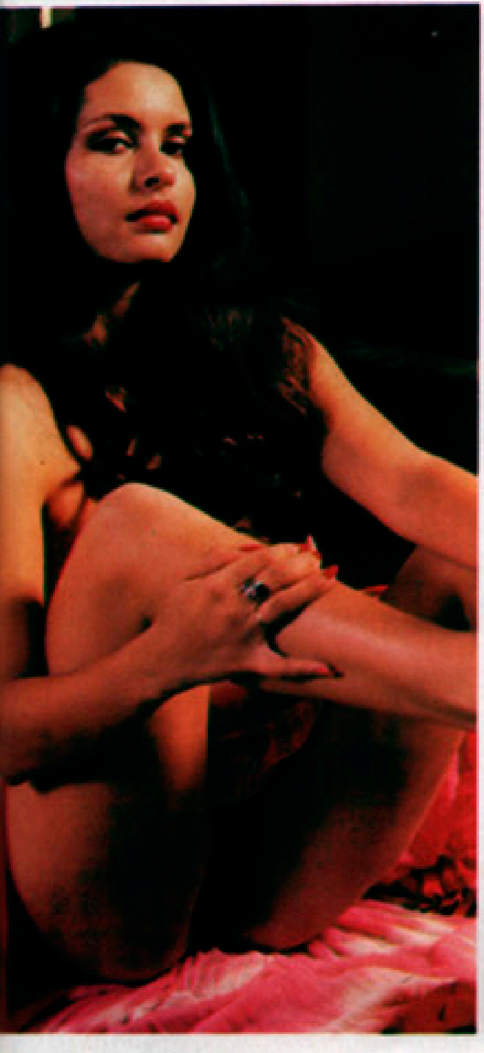
It's also hard to tell, looking at willowy Helena, that her other great passion is food. 'All the pubs around here serve meals and a lot of them are really excellent. It's not all cider and pasties down here you know. There's one that does a fantastic steak aux poivres. If I could find a man who'd buy me that a couple of times a week, I'd probably marry him on the spot.' Any offers, gentlemen?

Yanez

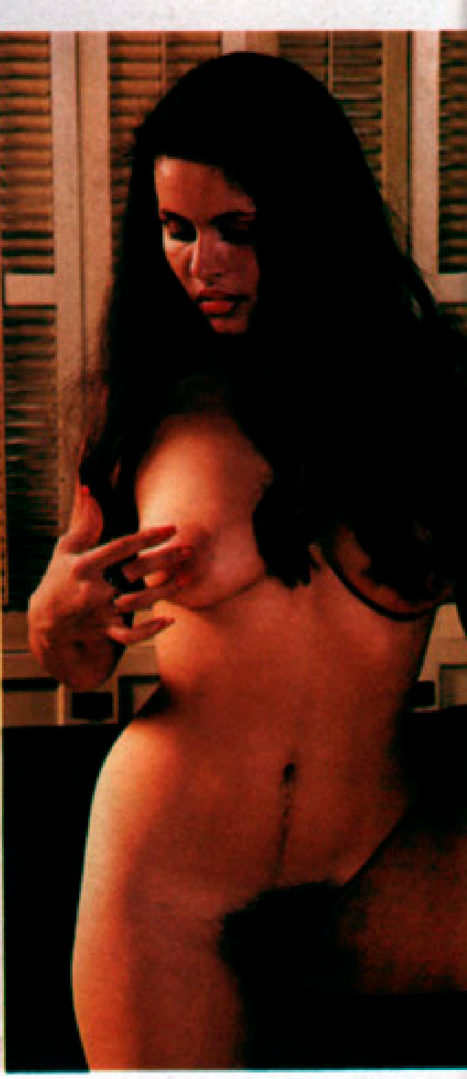
Not so long ago we featured a raven-haired American beauty called Yolanda Lancaster who was visiting Europe with her sister, Yanez. Both girls agreed to model for Mayfair and after tossing a coin they decided that Yolanda should appear first. Now, as promised we bring you her 20-year-old sister, Yanez. Both girls live in Denver, Colorado, where Yanez is studying at college and hopes to be an economist.

Yanez enjoyed her recent trip to Europe and, like her sister, took the opportunity of getting an all-over tan on her voluptuous 36–24–36 figure on the Greek islands' nudist beaches. 'We're both health fanatics and the chance of just lying out in the sun without being hampered by any clothes was just too good to miss. We ended up spending six weeks on the islands – and a lot of the time we were in a sort of haze from all that ouzo we were knocking back. It's an aniseed liqueur.'

The sisters' trip to Europe was not without excitement, like the time Yolanda almost broke her leg roller-skating in France. 'The kids there used to get those bikes with the little engines on the handlebars, take the front off and use it to pull themselves along. Of course we just had to have a go as we both skate a lot back home.' Unfortunately for Yolanda she had a fit of giggling when Yanez fell over and she lost control of the machine. 'She hit the curb and her leg was twisted under her when she struck the ground. We were worried at the time because it did look broken, but later when it turned out she was only bruised we had to laugh and I told her it served her right for jeering at me. But if she had been hobbling around with her leg in plaster it would have given me an advantage in the little game we play.' Yanez explained that if she and Yolanda both fancy the same man they have a competition to see who can make the best impression on him.



Back home in Denver Yanez is a horse fanatic and has a gelding called Silver. 'I cheated a bit when I named him because he is chestnut coloured. But I enjoy the Lone Ranger TV shows so much that I called him that.' Most of her free time is spent on Silver exploring the local countryside. 'There are still plenty of lonely trails out in the Rocky Mountains and I like to take food and blankets and spend a few days camping out – specially if I'm with a handsome cowboy.'



Lucinda

PHOTOGRAPHED BY JEAN ROUGERON

The prospect of being invited down to the South of France to spend a fortnight in a fairy-tale villa overlooking the sea would be enough to make most girls flush with excitement. But when photographer Jean Rougeron made this offer to 22-year-old Lucinda Baxter she didn't bat an eyelid. For Lucinda works as a nanny for a wealthy English family and divides her time between their town house in fashionable Chelsea and their country seat in the Scottish Highlands. 'I was obviously very pleased to accept Jean's offer,' Lucinda explained, 'but I wasn't overawed because I have worked for some very rich people, who also own villas. That's why I enjoy my job so much – I can live in a style I could never hope to afford.'

Jean met Lucinda at a dinner party and one look at her pert 35–22–35 body enclosed in a tight, figure-hugging black cocktail dress convinced him that she would be perfect for the setting he was planning to use – a magnificent chateau owned by a friend of his in Juan les Pins, one of the most exclusive resorts on the whole of the Cote d'Azur. 'I must admit it really was an amazing place, beautifully designed and furnished so simply and tastefully that it really felt like home. I could quite easily have got used to living there, if I hadn't had to come down to earth again she laughed. 'But I missed my three little charges as I really love children. I don't really think that they would let me take them with me.'

Needless to say with her good looks and figure, Lucinda is in great demand and has several boyfriends. 'I think there's nothing wrong with having a relationship with more than one man at a time if you are honest with them. I don't lead them along and they all know they are not the only man in my life.' Lucinda says she is not one for serious, exclusive relationships. 'I tend to get bored with men after a while, when the excitement goes out of an affair. I don't just mean the sexual side, though that is very important, of course. There is nothing quite like the first time in bed with someone as you explore each other's personalities and bodies.'

MANDY

PHOTOGRAPHED BY JOHN ALLUM

Mandy Harvey first appeared in Vol 17 No 12 here's what we said about her.

To look at these pictures of 22-year-old Mandy Harvey, you'd never guess that most of her spare time is spent dealing with worms, flies, hooks and reels. But this sexy blonde is a fishing fanatic and can usually be found on a riverbank, beach or pier.

Mandy's home town of Southampton is an ideal place for fishing, but with her 35-24-35 figure we think she is quite a catch herself. 'My personal best is a three pound sea bass, but now I have my own boat and I've been doing a lot of night fishing, so I hope to beat that.' Mandy once had an embarrassing experience when she cast out but forgot to cock the reel to release the line. 'The rod and reel flew straight into the water, and I've never heard the last of it.'

When she is not sitting on a riverbank, Mandy likes to spend time talking to her pet cockatoo called Baby. 'I looked after a neighbour's parrot for a week and taught it to eat from my hand. I liked it so much they got me one for Christmas.' Baby is allowed out of his cage and loves to sit on Mandy's shoulder or on her head and eat breakfast with her. He also talks. But Mandy's boyfriend has to beware. 'Baby gets very jealous and runs up and bites him if he kisses me.'

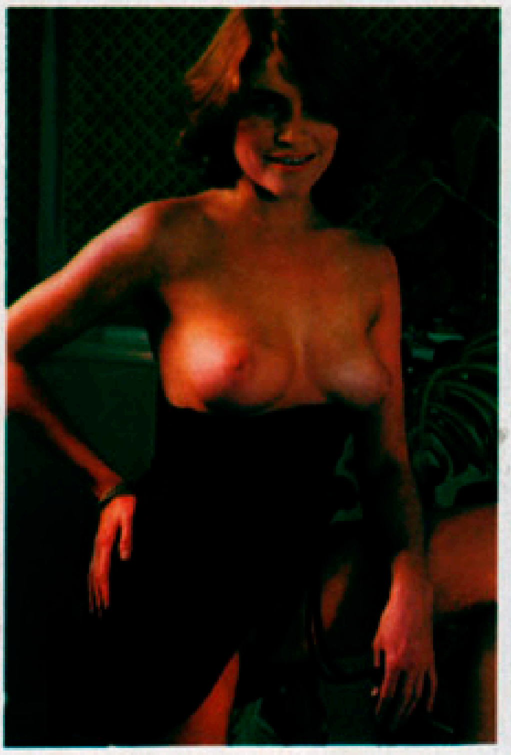
Mandy has had various jobs since she left school, including working as a machinist in a local factory, and even a stint as a chambermaid. 'I recently did some promotional work for the rock band called Q Tips and enjoyed that more than anything else I've ever done. It really was fun.' Apart from fishing and looking after Baby, Mandy enjoys going out for a drink in a country pub. 'There are plenty around this area in villages like Lyndhurst, Beaulieu, and at Brockenhurst.'

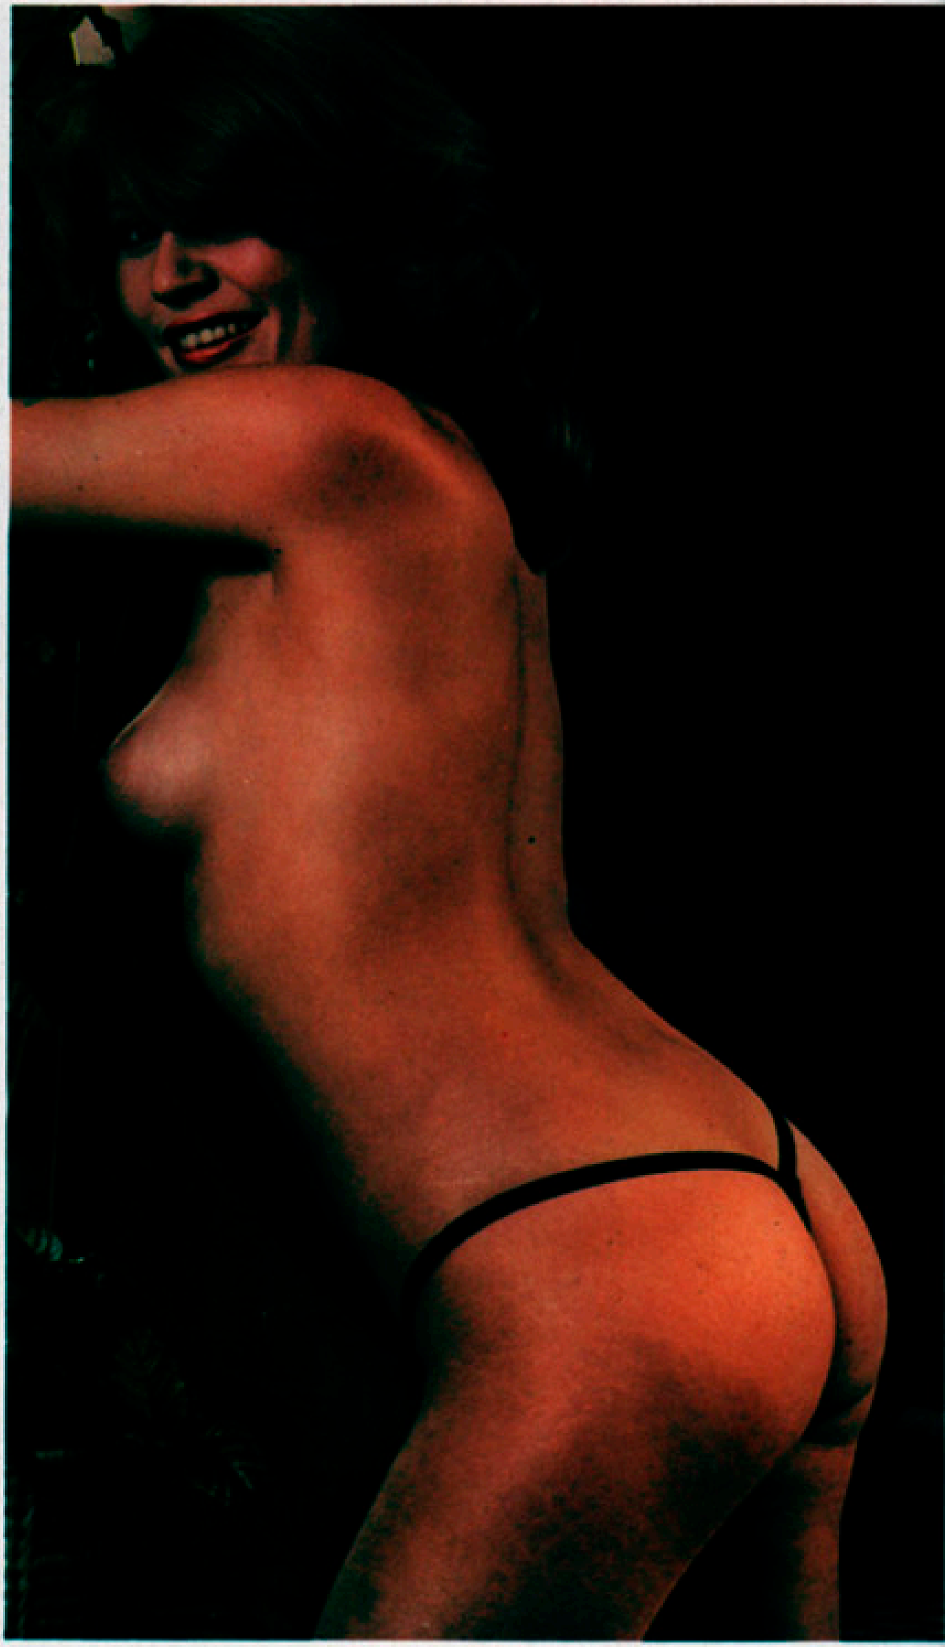
ANTONIA

PHOTOGRAPHED BY ED ALEXANDER

If you happen to get chatting with Antonia Thomson in one of her favourite pubs in her native Windsor, she might tell you her job involves a lot of risks. But don't worry, this 24-year-old beauty is not a spy involved in intelligence – she works in an insurance broker's office. And every day her 35–24–36 figure can be found behind a desk in the City where she is involved with figures of a less shapely nature.

Antonia hopes one day to branch out on her own and form her own company, but until then she is working for a small private firm to gain experience in all aspects of insurance. 'I find the whole business fascinating,' she told us. 'It is really a big gamble, with the insurance companies and clients betting on whether the worst will happen or not.' Professional etiquette prevented Antonia going into detail about her more unusual clients, but she said it is amazing just what some people want to insure. 'But it's true that whatever you want insured, however strange, there is always some company willing to cover it.' But we don't need any insurance on whether or not Antonia will succeed – she has too much determination for that.





FAITH

Faith is the substance of things hoped for. But it's doubtful if Paul had such a thing in mind as silky slinky Faith McDonald when he penned those words in the Epistle to the Hebrews. 'Thanks for the compliment,' says 24-year-old Faith, a blue-eyed bank cashier from 'almost-as-trendy-as-Fulham-but-not-quite' Putney, on the opposite side of the Thames, where she shares flat and affection between boyfriend, Alan, a goldfish (won at a fair on Wandsworth Common) and two large cats, Pinklerurr and Pinklepuss. 'But please, no more Faith jokes. Well, you can imagine the amount of teasing I came in for at school,' she purrs, her unrestrained breasts, with nipples outlined through flimsy T-shirt, ebbing and flowing across the table at the Hard Rock Cafe in London's Piccadilly. 'Old McDonald, they used to call me. Now, do I look like some old farmer?' Her 36C breasts wobble as she wriggles the rest – 24 inch waist and 36 inch hips – in her seat, surveys the crowded cafe, white uniformed waitresses frantically flitting from table to table; she takes another bite from her Downhome Doubleburger and a ladylike sip from her Budweiser, Polish-brewed lager. 'Lots of famous people come here but I don't like it for that.

They have the best hamburgers in London. I'm really a working girl . . . but I suppose that that is a bit boring, being a cashier . . . I know what you're thinking, but no, I haven't come into the money.' Hot fudge follows as sweet. 'I eat like a horse at weekends and count the calories during the week – I even drink soda water at the pub. Takes all the fun out of it though . . . drinking, silly. And that!'

CHRIS

Chris Cossens appeared in Vol 10 No 7
here's what we said about her.

Christina Caroline Cossens ('Chris to my friends, Tina to my parents and Christina to my relations'), lives most of her life in Copenhagen but is currently staying in a Kensington flat, Habitat-decorated with an original Hockney on the sitting room wall, she is driving a friend's black Lotus Elite and for the moment indulges a passion for tequila for which she developed a taste when holidaying in Acapulco last winter. Chris, as is soon apparent, is a young lady with the money to go with a 5 feet 7 inch, 36B–23–35 figure, a combination irresistible to most men. 'I've only been spurned once,' maintains Chris, 'and that was by a man who objected to my being wealthy. He seemed to think that it emasculated him, which I thought was rather childish actually. I mean I can't help it if Daddy's rich, can I? Daddy has these factories and things. He works very hard and travels a lot. But let's talk of something more interesting.' 23-year-old Chris was educated at a number of schools hidden among the forests and mountains of Europe and 'finished-off' at a college just outside Montreux in Switzerland. 'Finished-off is hardly the word for it,' she laughs, 'started-off would be more appropriate. A rather nice boy on a ski-holiday very gently relieved me of my virginity one half-term. To be perfectly honest, he was so genteel and kind that I was a bit disappointed in a funny sort of way. From everything I had read, I'd thought sex would be hot and passionate. It took me a while to discover that there are many different moods and methods of love-making.' Since leaving Switzerland, Chris has travelled around Europe and parts of Central and South America buying examples of local arts and crafts which she sells to friends in England. 'Scandinavia is absolutely marvellous for glass and stainless steel ware, and you can still pick up some very high-quality silver and onyx in Argentina,' says Chris, 'and I do meet some very interesting men on my travels. Very interesting men indeed. . .'
